

Born and raised in Chicago, Cecilia Boyd moved to Forest Park in 2013.

Cecilia is committed to helping others through her work in fundraising, community service and women's rights. Cecilia is currently Program Specialist for the Commission on Women in the Profession at the American Bar Association where she manages programs designed to advance the careers of women attorneys. In her free time, Cecilia is an avid runner having ran over 10 marathons, dozens of half marathons and a 50 mile race. She is also a certified Level 1 USA Track and Field coach.

Why Cecilia joined the Forest Park Diversity Commission:

Diversity is more than going out to eat at your local Mexican or Asian restaurant to experience another culture. It involves active communication and tactics that breed new ways of thinking that promote the inclusion and equality of all.

Forest Park is my home and I want other people who look like me to feel comfortable visiting and living in my community. I want to work towards promoting educational and fun activities that advocate and celebrate our diversity while building trusting communal relationships.
